

IT'S SO IF IT'S IN THE LEDGER.

W. C. HOFFMAN and Miss Marcia Brent eloped from Mt. Sterling and married at Covington.

A COMPLETE new stock of groceries has been placed in his grocery by Will N. Stockton on Second street.

THERE are only three candidates for graduation this year in our Public Schools—two ladies and one gentleman.

IN 1892 the Cincinnati, Newport and Covington street railway carried 4,800,000 passengers. Last year the road carried 8,061,000.

THE Lexington Mayor and the newspaper men have arbitrated their differences, and it is to be hoped there will be no more personalities.

DR. THOMAS E. PICKETT of this city was chosen one of the Directors of the Scotch-Irish Society of Kentucky, which met at Louisville last week.

HON. JOHN D. CARROLL of New Castle, Chairman of the State Democratic Central Committee, will on April 3d wed Miss Helen Stanford of Henry county.

THE Bible Class of the M. E. Church, South, will meet in the Pastor's study Friday evening at 7 o'clock and will be led by the Pastor, Rev. T. W. Watts. All are cordially invited to attend.

THE price of the beautiful Tea Set in show window at Ballenger's was $25. It has been reduced $1 every day since and price today is $17. It is of the very best make and quality and you will miss a good thing if you let some other person get it.

THERE was this morning an incipient runaway that would have been a real one if Chris Hunsicker hadn't displayed so much nerve. The magnificent horse attached to the Collins & Rudy Lumber Co.'s wagon took fright at Second and Sutton, and started to run. Chris held on like grim death to a sick kitten, and finally stopped him, but not until a coupling-pole was broken.

STEAMBOAT WAR.

The Augusta and Vanceburg Trade Will Profit Thereby, Maybe.

Captain G. W. Edgington, commander of the steamer M. P. Wells, who recently traded his towboat Bellevue for the steamer Silver Ware, started his line of boats yesterday in the Augusta and Vanceburg trade, a distance of forty-eight miles.

Each boat will make the round trip each day. It is rumored that the White Collar Line considers this an encroachment on their territory, and will, at an early date, place an opposition boat in the trade mentioned.

To further complicate matters the new Higginsport packet, Enos Taylor, was launched last week, and as soon as completed she will be placed in the same trade.

The people along the line are anticipating a lively steamboat war.

CASE OF LUCK.

A Mason County Man Loses His Roll But Finds It Again.

A special from Dover says "Uncle Joe" Hancock, a rich and eccentric old stock dealer residing in the Southern part of this county, was certainly born under a lucky star.

When "Uncle Joe" is out buying stock he always carries his money in an old vest, which he swings across the saddle on his horse.

While out on the road several days ago the old vest containing $116 fell off unobserved, and was not missed by its owner until he arrived at home late that night.

With characteristic eccentricity "Uncle Joe" concluded that it would be useless to go back and look for the money, and gave it up as gone.

Returning on the same route two days later he found the old vest by the roadside, and, examining the pockets, was both surprised and delighted to find the money all right.

Doubtless scores of persons saw the old vest lying in the road, and kicked and tossed it about, but no one thought of finding money in the garment.

A TELEGRAM was received yesterday afternoon by Manager Kinneman stating that Bill Nye would be able to fill his engagement in this city in spite of all reports current as to his health.

SEVERAL couples from this side of the river went over to Aberdeen last night to a dance given there by the I. D. A. Societies of that city. They all report a jolly good time and say the dance was a success in every way.

IN Covington the K. C. was sued for the killing of George B. Jameson, an employee. A jury gave plaintiff $10,000. On appeal the case was reversed on the grounds that plaintiff had no right to sue. Now the case has been compromised for $200.

THE charge against James Hilderbrand for being disorderly was not dismissed as reported, but the decision was reserved until after the trial tomorrow for fighting in a street car. Judge Wadsworth will then render sentence in both cases. In the meantime James is lingering at the Hotel de Kirk.

BASEBALL.

The Movement Toward Forming a League Going Slowly.

The following item from The Ironton Daily Republican explains itself:

"Frank Mercer, the baseballist, who is laboring hard to get clubs formed and a tri-state league organized, has heard from Maysville, Ky., and Chillicothe, O., where clubs are being organized for the league. Huntington, Charleston, Middleport and Portsmouth have not been heard from, but it is hoped they will soon move in the matter.

"Regarding the proposed meeting of baseballists here on the 23d, Mercer says he is uncertain whether he can get a meeting then, but if not will try it a little later. Maysville and Chillicothe are ready to send representatives, however. Mercer has received a letter from A. B. Watts of a Northern Ohio team, asking Ironton to join the league which embraces Mansfield, Akron and other Ohio towns, and McKeesport and Meadville, Pa., but he prefers to organize a new league. Our neighboring cities should get a move on the National game."

Merchants, Attention!

Please read THE LEDGER'S proposition, under head of "Where to Deal," to be found in another column, and then have your name placed "on the list."

If you have friends visiting you, or if you are going away on a visit, please drop us a note to that effect.

THOMAS J. CHRONOWETH, Postmaster.

Lincoln Possessed a Full Sense of the Responsibilities That Were Upon Him—Cleveland Possesses No Sense at All—Lincoln Was a Modest Man; Cleveland is a Puffed-up Egotist.

A contributor to The New York Press notes the fact that several men of imaginative, or perhaps Pickwickian temperaments, have asserted that they had discovered in Mr. Cleveland some resemblance to Abraham Lincoln. Here are the strongest points of comparison as they strike an earnest student of both characters. The youth and young manhood of the two men present many interesting points of comparison, but these the contributor passes over.

Mr. Lincoln learned political history and statesmanship on the stump, in the Illinois Legislature and in Congress. He met the greatest Democrat of his time in joint debate and beat him.

Mr. Lincoln was the incarnation of the Union cause. He endured the vilest abuse from enemies and the most serious misunderstanding of friends, and finally freely gave up his life for it.

Mr. Lincoln secured the approval of mankind by the manner in which he discharged the most tremendous responsibilities.

Mr. Lincoln appointed to office the strongest men in his party and those which had rendered the greatest services to the country—several of them his rivals for the Presidency.

Mr. Lincoln was the idol of the soldiers; they loved him like a father. At the dedication of the National Cemetery at Gettysburg, in November, 1863, he said: "We cannot dedicate, we cannot consecrate, we cannot hallow this ground. The brave men, living and dead, who struggled here have consecrated it far above our poor power to add or detract. The world will little note nor long remember what we say here, but it can never forget what they did here."

Mr. Lincoln could not refuse a reprieve to any boy that wore the blue who had been condemned for violation of military regulations, as a number of the mothers of such boys could testify.

Mr. Lincoln had great difficulty during the war in preventing Jeff Thompson and other scoundrels under his direction from introducing clothing infected with smallpox, yellow fever, etc., into New York City and other Northern cities, and from actually destroying those cities by fire.

Mr. Lincoln was not lacking in opinion, or decision, or firmness, but constantly sought the advice and counsel of the great men of his time.

Mr. Lincoln, after he had been abused, maligned and lied about as scarcely any other man in our history has been, wrote: "With malice toward none, and with charity for all, let us do the right as God gives us to see the right."

Mr. Lincoln's appointee, General John A. Dix, said, in 1861: "If any man attempts to haul down the American flag, shoot him on the spot."

Mr. Lincoln on a memorable occasion made a vow to the Almighty, and at the first opportunity performed it.

Mr. Lincoln's favorite poem began, "Oh! why should the spirit of mortal be proud?"

The impartial reader must acknowledge that the picture is a perfect one, and that a man discounts his own intelligence who compares the egotist of the White House to the great Lincoln.

THOMAS J. CHRONOWETH, Postmaster.

Mr. Cleveland took his lessons in statesmanship in the saloons, the Sheriff's and the Mayor's offices and the ward politics of the city of Buffalo. In the last campaign he met three of the greatest Democrats of his time at the Victoria Hotel dinner and secured their earnest support.

Mr. Cleveland never even gave a phrase to the support of the Union that anyone can remember, and he is not illiberal in the use of phrases, either.

Mr. Cleveland charms his worshippers with his repeated announcements of "a solemn sense of responsibility."

Mr. Cleveland appointed to office a few good men and then filled in with non-descripts, personal flatterers and campaign contributors.

Mr. Cleveland has always treated and spoken of Union soldiers in a slighting or contemptuous manner. He has vetoed more pension bills than all other Presidents. In 1887 he made all arrangements to attend the annual encampment of the Union veterans at St. Louis, but finally decided to stay away, because he feared he might be insulted by the men who saved the Union in 1861-1865.

Mr. Cleveland restored the notorious libertine and man slayer Stokes to citizenship immediately after an election in which that individual had rendered him great political service. He was also very influential, at the beginning of the last National campaign, in saving from the gallows that cowardly and cold-blooded murderer, Colonel King, of Tennessee.

Mr. Cleveland, when Jeff Thompson died, ordered the flags at halfmast in honor of his memory. He having been Secretary of the Navy under the last eminent Democratic President before the war.

Mr. Cleveland believes himself all sufficient for the solution of every problem, and entirely beyond the reach of advice from any one.

Mr. Cleveland, after the newspapers had told some of the truth about him, took occasion, at a dinner at which he was the principal guest, to refer to "the ghouliah glee of the public press."

Mr. Cleveland's Paramout Commissioner ordered the flag hauled down in 1893.

Mr. Cleveland seems to be possessed with the idea that the Almighty had pledged himself to him.

Mr. Cleveland knows nothing of poetry or any other form of literature, but his favorite words are: "I," "Me," "My" and "Mine."

CHRONOWETH'S Dentine cleanses and beautifies the teeth. Try it. ROBERT BUCKLER of Mt. Olivet, a former law student under Judge Pfister of this city, is a candidate for County Attorney of Robertson county, with blooming chances of success. He is a Robertson boy by birth, and deserves much credit for the strong effort he is making to get up in the world. Personally, he is courteous, open-hearted and possessed of considerable ability. Success to you, Mr. Buckler, for we believe in giving the boys a chance.

Of Course You Know Him. In another column of this issue of THE LEDGER will be found the advertisement of R. B. Lovel, the popular grocer at the corner of Third and Market streets. Mr. Lovel is without doubt the leading grocer of Maysville, and has by his honest dealings and truthfulness at all times made every citizen of Maysville his staunch friend.

There is nothing new on the market but what Mr. Lovel has as soon as it can possibly be secured, and his customers have learned by continued dealing with him that there is no delicacy on the market but what they can get at Lovel's. It is by this mode of doing business that he has built up the large trade which he sustains and which he is so justly entitled to.

What Mr. Lovel says is so and when you glance over the columns of this paper and see his advertisement you may rest assured that nothing is misrepresented.

He is a business man that Maysville should justly feel proud of.

MAYSVILLE WEATHER.
What We May Expect For the Next Twenty-four Hours.

THE LEDGER'S WEATHER SIGNALS.

A WANT.

I'm looking for some pretty girl Of modest, quite meek, Who dresses well, knows how to spell And has a wit that's keen.

I want a little weather-vane That turns with every wind, I think a blonde would suit me best— She must be well refined.

She must be as constant as the star, No meteor would do, And like her own sweet little self, Her grammar must be true.

Yet more if she would be with me, (Excuse the slang,) right "in it," She must be able to take down One hundred words a minute.

WHO GOT IT?

That Is the Furniture at the Opera-House Saturday Night.

Most everybody knows of the entertainment given by Mr. and Mrs. Robert Wayne at the Opera-house all of last week, and those who do well remember that the management of that company advertised to give away an elegant suit of parlor furniture.

Well, there you are. There are tricks in all businesses except the theatrical.

THE LEDGER stated Monday that Elmer Peirce had drawn the furniture and so did everybody think. But now comes a couple of notes of a most interesting character. The first was brought into this office yesterday morning by a young man whose name we prefer withholding for the present. That note read as follows:

Editor: It is a mistake. Elmer Peirce did not receive the parlor suit that was to be given away by the Robert Wayne Company at the Opera-house, nor neither was it given away, but taken back to Mr. Ort's Furniture Store, where it had been borrowed. Elmer held the right number which was given him by the manager of the show company, but the parlor suite was not to be given away.

After this note was received a representative of this paper saw the boy, who denied writing the note or having anything to do with it.

It was afterward learned that his mother wrote it from the following note received this morning:

Editor Ledger: Please put that item in the paper which I sent up by Herbert, for it is true.

And now we publish it and let the public draw their own conclusions.

Manager Kinneman claims total ignorance of the matter and says it must have been done by Manager Himmellen of the Wayne Company.

The furniture was taken back to Henry Ort's Furniture Store, where it was purchased (?), and all the little fellow got of the drawing was a pass to the show on Saturday evening.

But business was very poor last week and while the drawing attracted some people, no one was seriously injured by it.

This is only one of the many cases where the public is made believe they are going to get something for nothing when nine cases out of every ten of drawings of this character are conducted on the same plan and invariably have a "string to them."
